by deleting all language after the enacting clause and by substituting instead the following:

SECTION 1. The title of this act is, and may be cited as the "Tennessee Commission to Study Reparation Proposals for African-Americans Act".

SECTION 2.

(a) Findings. The general assembly finds that:

(1) Approximately 4,000,000 Africans and their descendants were enslaved in the United States and the colonies that became the United States from 1619 to 1865;

(2) The institution of slavery was constitutionally and statutorily sanctioned by the government of the United States from 1789 through 1865;

(3) The slavery that flourished in the United States constituted an immoral and inhumane deprivation of Africans' life, liberty, African citizenship rights, and cultural heritage, and denied them the fruits of their own labor;

(4) Sufficient inquiry has not been made into the effects of the institution of slavery on living African-Americans and society in the United States; and

(5) The State of Tennessee should acknowledge the fundamental injustice, cruelty, brutality, and inhumanity of slavery in the United States and the 13 American colonies between 1619 and 1865 and that the general assembly should establish a commission to examine the institution of slavery, subsequent de jure and de facto racial and economic discrimination against African-Americans, and the impact of these forces on living African-Americans, and make recommendations to the general assembly on appropriate remedies.

(b) Purpose. The purpose of this act is to establish a commission to:

(1) Examine the institution of slavery which existed from 1619 through 1865 within the United States and the colonies that became the United States, including the extent to which the federal and state governments constitutionality and statutorily supported the institution of slavery;

(2) Examine de jure and de facto discrimination against freed slaves and their descendants from the end of the Civil War to the present, including economic, political, and social discrimination;

(3) Examine the lingering negative effects of the institution of slavery and the discrimination described in subdivision (b)(2) on living African-Americans and on society in the United States;

(4) Recommend appropriate ways to educate the American public of the commission's findings;

(5) Recommend appropriate remedies in consideration of the commission's findings on the matters described in subdivisions (b)(1) and (2);
and

(6) Submit to the general assembly the results of such examination, together with such recommendations.

SECTION 3. Establishment and Duties.

(a) Establishment. There is established the Commission to Study Reparation Proposals for African-Americans (hereinafter in this act referred to as the "commission").

(b) Duties. The commission shall perform the following duties:

(1) Examine the institution of slavery which existed within the United States and the colonies that became the United States from 1619 through 1865.

The commission's examination shall include and examination of:

(A) The capture and procurement of Africans;

(B) The transport of Africans to the United States and the colonies that became the United States for the purpose of enslavement, including their treatment during transport;

(C) The sale and acquisition of Africans as chattel property in interstate and intrastate commerce; and

(D) The treatment of African slaves in the colonies and the United States, including the deprivation of their freedom, exploitation of their labor, and destruction of their culture, language, religion, and families.

(2) Examine the extent to which the federal and state governments of the United States supported the institution of slavery in constitutional and statutory provisions, including the extent to which such governments prevented, opposed, or restricted efforts of freed African slaves to repatriate to their home land.

(3) Examine federal and state laws that discriminated against freed African slaves and their descendants during the period between the end of the Civil War and the present.

(4) Examine other forms of discrimination in the public and private sectors against freed African slaves and their descendants during the period between the end of the Civil War and the present.

(5) Examine the lingering negative effects of the institution of slavery and the matters described in subdivisions (b)(1), (2), (3), and (4) on living African-Americans and on society in the United States.

(6) Recommend appropriate ways to educate the American public of the commission's findings.

(7) Recommend appropriate remedies in consideration of the commission's findings on the matters described in subdivisions (b)(1), (2), (3), and (4). In making such recommendation, the commission shall address, among other issues, the following questions:

(A) Whether the State of Tennessee should offer a formal apology on behalf of the people of the State of Tennessee for the perpetration of gross human rights violations on African slaves and their descendants.

(B) Whether African-Americans still suffer from the lingering effects of the matters described in subdivisions (b)(1), (2), (3), and (4).

(C) Whether, in consideration of the commission's findings, any form of compensation to the descendants of African slaves is warranted.

(D) If the commission finds that such compensation is warranted, what should be the amount of compensation, what form of compensation should be awarded, and who should be eligible for such compensation.
